FREED AT INQUEST,
PUT UNDER ARREST
ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Frank Parkhill, Philadelphia, Had Beer in Car Which Killed Man

WAS NOT INTOXICATED

Mrs. Helen Fitzgerald Exonerated of Blame for Death of Girl

The same jury holding inquisitions into the deaths of two persons due to automobile accidents held that both accidents were unavoidable and exonerated both defendants in the two cases.

The inquisitions were held in the Municipal Building here yesterday afternoon by Coroner John J. Sweeney, assisted by his deputy, W. Furman Young.

Immediately after the jury had exonerated Frank M. Parkhill, 40, 2914 N. Croskey street, Philadelphia, of any blame for the accident which resulted in the death of his friend, Walter McGuire, 34, 2938 N. 22nd street, Philadelphia, and who was riding in the same car with him, Parkhill was placed under arrest charged with illegal possession and transportation of intoxicating liquor. He was given a hearing before Justice Alvey, Woodbourne, and admitted to $500 bail. He will stand trial at the next term of court.

The coroner's jury was composed of Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., Peter Wade, George Silbert, John Lynn, Frank Green, and Frank Lunderbough.

The first inquest was into the death of Lura Mae Waters, 16, Wyoming avenue, Crofton, who was struck and instantly killed by a car driven by Mrs. Helen Fitzgerald, 113 Radcliffe street, Bristol.

The accident occurred early on the evening of Thanksgiving on the Bristol Pike at Maynes Lane. Mrs. Fitzgerald was returning from Philadelphia and the victim along with her sister, Dorothy, 15, and Matilda Grafenstine and her sister, Florence, had just gotten off a bus after returning from Bristol.

Lura Mae was instantly killed and her sister, Dorothy, was injured.

Matilda Grafenstine was the first witness to testify. She told of leaving the bus along with the other three girls. She stated that she looked up the Highway and waited until five or six cars had passed before she and the others attempted to cross. "I heard a screeching of brakes," she said. The girl told the jury that she looked to the side of the road and saw a shoe. Dorothy Waters was thrown at her feet. She inquired of Dorothy if she was hurt and Dorothy answered that her ankle hurt but she then asked for her sister. Miss Grafenstine then saw someone put Lura Mae into a car and take her to the hospital.

Miss Grafenstine told the jury that she had looked only up the highway and had not looked in the other direction before crossing to see if any cars were coming.

She was not an eye witness to the accident, the witness told the jury.

Florence Grafenstine, 13, was the next witness. Florence, after getting off the bus, was taken across the highway by her sister, Matilda, and put on the foot bridge which leads over the tracks of the P. R. R. and continued on to her home.

Dorothy Waters, 15, sister of the victim, said that she did not actually see the accident. She claimed that she looked up and down the highway before crossing.

HELP IS NEEDED AT ONCE!

THE Central Relief Committee does a very important and necessary work in the community by providing for certain of our people who, because of unemployment, sickness or other reason, are for the time unable to take care of themselves. The committee attempts to meet the urgent needs of those who suffer such misfortune and who do not come under the relief activities of the churches, fraternal organizations, or other charitable groups or committees.

Every year the Central Relief Committee must thus extend the helping hand to some individuals and families in our midst. But we all know that conditions throughout the entire Country are worse this Winter than they have been for a period of years, and that Bristol has its proportionate number of those who, through lack of work, are face to face with cold and hunger, if relief measures are not carried into effect at once. The Central Relief Committee therefore has a much larger task than in what might be termed an average year, and in asking for a fund of $2,000 is only seeking an amount which will be absolutely necessary for the Committee work during this Winter.

We all recognize that in both its humane and its civic aspects this is a responsibility of citizenship which devolves upon those who are in a position to help the unfortunate and needy of our community. By contributing to the Committee, your help is applied more intelligently and effectively than is possible through private donations. Your dollars do the most good where there is the greatest need; duplications and consequent inequalities are prevented; and Committee help does not humiliate or pauperize the needy and deserving recipient by imposing feelings of obligations to an individual.

The Central Relief Committee is confronted with an unusual and emergency situation, and hence urges most earnestly that you make a substantial contribution at once, in order that no family in our community may be compelled to endure actual cold and hunger during the rigorous Winter months that are now at hand.

Contributions should be sent to Thomas Scott, treasurer, Farmers National Bank.

A list of the names and donors will be published in the local press.

YARDLEY MAN TO FACE
MURDER CHARGE TODAY

Charles Haney to Be Held for Court for Killing
Wife

TO GET TRIAL IN FEB'Y.

YARDLEY, Dec. 19.—Charles Haney, 26, will be brought here this afternoon from Mercer hospital, Trenton, N. J., to stand trial for the death of his wife, Mary, whom he shot October 12th at their home.

Some time this afternoon he will be taken from Mercer Hospital to the office of a justice of the peace and there will be held without bail on a charge of murder.

Then he will be taken to the Bucks County Jail at Doylestown, and committed until the February term of Criminal Court opens.

Constable South, of Yardley, will remove the prisoner to this borough where the murder was committed more than two months ago.

Haney's two little children are unaware of the tragedy that has entered their lives. They know that something unusual has happened, but that is all.

The little boy, who bears his father's name, aged five years, and his sister, Alice, three years old, are living with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Francis, Sr., of Edgewater ave.

TURKEY PRICES UP
TWO CENTS AT SALE

First Choice Birds Bring 38½
Cents at Perkaskie
Auction

PLENTY OF BUYERS

King turkey took a flight of two cents a pound over its Thanksgiving altitude at the public auction held in Perkaskie yesterday.

The highest mark reached was thirty-eight and a half cents a pound on the hoof, and the runner-up birds went at thirty-four, and thirty and a half cents. The scrubs sold at twenty-five.

Bidding was considerably keener than it was in November, and prices are more closely bunched, the lots all going at approximately the same price. Although thirty-eight cents was the top last month the prices suffered an abrupt drop to unexpected depths after the first were sold, pulling the average two cents below the Christmas figure.

Sheetz and Gulick, the new turkey kings, state that the demand is so heavy that they could sell considerably more turkeys than they have at hand. Several Philadelphia dealers appeared with requests for five and six hundred birds.

The dealers were forced to refuse, however, as the drain on their supply would leave some of the regular buyers of more normal sized lots without birds.

Best chickens remained at the same mark they set last month, but the scrubs brought as low as fifteen cents today, while the bottom price was twenty-one for Thanksgiving.

Geese took a sizeable hop upward, when they demanded as high a figure as $1.70 each, while the poorer ones went at $1.45, which was the top price last month.

Free luncheon was served to the turkey dealers at the noon recess, and the sale was continued in the afternoon, with the bidding still brisk, and no signs of "hard times" threatening the success of the Christmas dinner business.

Rotary Club Gets Visit
From Santa; Brings Gifts

The Rotary Club enjoyed a Christmas party yesterday afternoon following the weekly meeting which was held in the Elks Home.

There was a regular Christmas dinner served and, then the members adjourned to the rear lawn and Santa came down the fire escape.

The ruddy faced old fellow distributed gifts to the members and a very pleasant time was enjoyed.

Mrs. F. H. Mills Chosen
Head of Edgely P. T. A.

EDGELY, Dec. 19.—Mrs. F. H. Mills was chosen as president of the Edgely Parent Teacher Association at the December meeting in the public school house here last evening.

Seventy-five attended the session, and at the conclusion of business the following Christmas program was presented by the second and third grades: Recitation, "Welcome," Harold Carter; song, "Jingle Bells," school; Christmas spelling exercise; recitation, "Santa's Mistake," Wayne Locke; Mother Goose play, children; Christmas greeting, William Brown; exercise, "Santa's Little Son," "Kitty's Present," Leah Hillborn; "Expecting Santa," recitation by Aileen Wright; song, "Away in a Manger," school; exercise, "Christmas Candles," three little girls; song by school, "Silent Night."

REFRESHMENTS SERVED

Last evening, the Catholic Daughters of America held a Christmas party in the Knights of Columbus Home, Radcliffe street. The attendance was exceptionally good, there being between 75 and 100 members present.

Several members of the organization provided the entertainment for the evening which consisted of the following numbers:

Vocal solos by the Misses Alice and Bessie Rafferty, piano solo by Mrs. Helen McDevitt and Miss Gertrude Roche, two novelty acts, one by the Misses Margaret Roarty and Mary McGee and the other by Miss Mary McFadden and Miss Katharine Waters. These numbers were well rendered, and appreciated by the audience.

A huge Christmas tree was displayed in the parlor of the Home, beside which was Santa Claus' throne. During the evening Santa Claus, accompanied by his little brownie, appeared on the scene and distributed toys and other beautiful gifts. Miss Adeline Gallagher played the role of Santa Claus and Miss Margaret P. Dougherty was the little brownie.

The members were then invited to the dining room where a delicious repast was served. The room was beautifully decorated with red and green streamers and the table centerpieces were miniature Christmas trees.

The evening was a most pleasant one for everyone present. The committee in charge was composed of: Miss Catherine M. Dugan, chairlady; Miss Mary McGee, Miss Marie Gaffney, Miss Angelina Riley, Miss Margaret Roarty, Miss Margaret M. Dougherty, Miss Alice Rafferty and Mrs. Joseph Foster.

John Ward Found Dead
In Bed by His Brother

John Ward, 53, 713 Garden street, was found dead in bed at his home yesterday afternoon by his brother, Neal Ward.

The deceased, apparently, had suffered a heart attack and had attempted to get out of bed. One shoe was on and it is presumed that the man was stricken while in the act of dressing.

Deputy Coroner W. Furman Young was notified and viewed the body.

The deceased was a widower.

William T. Robinson
Weds Miss Stiegelmann

(Special to Courier)
NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Miss Hilda Stiegelmann, 22, of Bristol, Pa., and William T. Robinson, 22, a draftsman, of Philadelphia, Pa., procured a license to marry at the Municipal Building here. They left the marriage bureau to be married at the Little Church Around the Corner, 1 East 29th street, New York.

Miss Stiegelmann was born in Johnstown, the daughter of Robert and Katherine Stiegelmann. Mr. Robinson who is the son of William L. and Lulu Pettit Robinson, was born in Philadelphia.

RANGERS SURPRISE FANS AND WIN CONTEST

Defeat League-Leading Tiger
Five in A. O. H.
Contest

FINAL SCORE IS 27 TO 25

By T. M. Juno

The Rangers showed the greatest surprise of the A. O. H. Basketball League last night when they handed the league-leading Tigers their second defeat of the season. The game was played on the A. O. H. floor with the final score being Rangers, 27; Tigers, 25.

Up until last night's victory the Rangers had not won a game and were resting in the cellar with six straight defeats.

Although defeated, the Tigers did not relinquish their hold on first place as the runner-up Rambler team succumbed to the White Elephants.

No individual player was outstanding on the Rangers' quintet as the five showed the best teamwork as seen on the local court this season.

The Tigers looked like an easy winner in the first half when they piled up a 11-7 lead but the tail-enders came back strong in the final session of the game and between the players scored nine two pointers and two fouls, a total of twenty points. The Tigers' best was a lone field goal and two free shots in ten tries. It was the rally in the second half which gave the Rangers their first league win.

In the second battle of the evening the Ramblers lost a chance to gain some percentage on the Tigers by bowing to Jimmy Dolan's White Elephants, 26-15.

It was the fine defense of the winners that stood out in the triumph. During the first twenty minutes of play, the Ramblers could score but one field goal and in the second half only four two-pointers went through the cords.

"Jimmy" Lake and "Huby" Brady were the leading scorers in the White Elephants' scoring with eleven and eight points, respectively. Gene Lawler with six points was the losers' high scorer.

PANIC-STRICKEN CATTLE ADD TO PROBLEM ---"ALBERTA HAMLIN," FOUR-YEAR-OLD PACER, AMONG THE HORSES THAT PERISH--ORIGIN OF THE BLAZE IS UNDETERMINED --- STRUCTURE'S CONTENTS WERE UNINSURED---WAS COUNTY SHOW-PLACE.

(By International News Service)

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 19.—The piercing neighs of panic-stricken horses, intermingled with the bellows of dying cattle, as the huge barns on the farm of Frank Heaton, Doylestown township, two miles south of the borough limits, went up in flames early today.

Ten head of cattle, four horses, a pony and 150 chickens perished in the blaze. A large quantity of farm machinery and ten tons of hay were destroyed.

The farm, one of the show places of the county, had been leased to J. Warren Carver, a prominent horseman, who estimated the loss at $25,000. None of the contents of the huge structure were insured.

Special Collection of Mail
Arranged for Sunday

Mail increases 200 per cent during the holiday period, and therefore according to Postmaster Clarence G. Young, it is necessary to mail packages, cards and letters at an early date.

A special collection will be made Sunday at six p. m., for the purpose of assuring all patrons that Christmas mail will be delivered in New England states, New York, Pennsylvania and neighboring states by Christmas Day. "Please take advantage of this unusual collection," urges the postmaster.

Five Years of Christian Service Gives Basis for the Talk

REV. PENT IS SPEAKER

HULMEVILLE, Dec. 19.—Five years of Christian service in the heart of South America formed the material for an interesting talk by the Rev. Philip Pent in the Neshaminy M. E. Church, here, last evening.

Rev. Pent and his wife, who with their two children, are enjoying a furlough in Scottsville, have been serving in that southern continent, taking the story of the Saviour to the many Indian tribes and small village residents. Trips of hundreds of miles afoot were recalled by the speaker, as he told of how eagerly those who had not heard the Word before, accepted it. "They have a hunger in their hearts they realize not," he added.

The Pents entered South America at Rio de Janeiro, and after their long period of service and travel came out at the Amazon. The minister cited many cases of blessings through faith, and of how prayer of the faith-believer is answered.

At the present time the station in South America where this couple has been located is being cared for by three other missionaries, who are (Continued on Page 4)

The mysterious blaze broke out in the barn shortly after midnight. Heaton chanced to notice it from his residence nearby and immediately called Carver. The latter rushed out to the barn in his night clothes in a frantic effort to rescue his prize live stock.

On entering the section where the horses were stabled he found them panic stricken and he was unable to lead them or drive any of them to safety.

Despairing of saving the horses, Carver then rushed to the rescue of the cattle. Here he found the cattle also frantic with fright. However, he managed to rescue four cows but two of them were so badly burned they had to be killed. Six cows, three heifers and a bull died in the fire.

One of the horses which perished in the fire was "Alberta Hamlin," a four-year-old pacer who had attracted much attention in the Eastern Pennsylvania harness races during the past summer and fall.

The origin of the blaze has not been determined. Neither Heaton nor Carver could evolve a theory as to the cause of the fire and William L. Stackhouse, Bucks county fire marshal, will probably be called upon to conduct an investigation.

Junior Travel Group
Holds Interesting Meeting

The second get-together meeting of the Junior Travel Club was held last evening in the Travel Club room on Cedar street.

Six new members were admitted to the Club last evening, now making a total membership of twenty young ladies. The members are very enthusiastic over the progress of the organization.

Miss Anna Gray Tracy was chairlady of the entertainment committee and the following program was arranged:

Miss Florence Peirce rendered a vocal solo, Miss Marjorie Fagan entertained with her clever whistling and a play in numbers was given by the Misses Anna Jeffries, Elizabeth Scott, Margaret W. Pope and Doris Johns.

Miss Winifred Tracy was piano accompanist.

Following the entertainment refreshments were served.

ORDER AN AUTO FOR CHRISTMAS --- ENJOY LIFE

Numerous are the things in America today taken for granted as necessities which a few years ago were looked upon as luxuries.

And foremost and in great number among these is the automobile, that motor-drawn car which became a need in the business and social world, and which need the manufacturers have annually been filling, improving upon previous models each twelve-month, and meeting the demand for cars for every purpose.

Today the business man could not do without his machine, and daily at all hours are men and women filling the highways going to and fro from business engagements and employment, whether in office, factory, shop or school.

The housewife finds her task made easier with this "accessory," and her marketing, shopping, and calling are all done in much less time than was previously thought possible. In many places where the school-house is far removed from the home the trip is shortened by means of wheels.

The young man and young woman attending college, or business school find an automobile a handy "attachment," and make their opportunities to visit the home-folks more numerous.

For pleasure purposes is the motor car used in this America of 1930, and millions all over the country are benefitting from the additional chances to make trips to the country, and from vacations which the large family a few years ago found well high impossible, and which today is accomplished with less expense than ever before when the family car is used and the whole group bundled in.

Travel is broadening many at home and abroad, and those travelling by automobile find it much easier to reach the out-of-the-way spots, and the beautiful nooks by means of a car.

America is on the road, and is profiting by it. The family today which is without a car finds itself handicapped. Those who are enjoying this pleasure find they are benefitting day after day. Time is saved; money is stretched further when the family wishes to make a trip; and all spells convenience and comfort in the modern machine.

Manufacturers of automobiles have been serving Bristol and the nation at large for years, and the local dealers (Continued on Page 4)

An inventory amounting to $34,666.91, was filed in the Register of Wills' office, Doylestown, yesterday in the estate of Oscar D. Koplin, Durham. Numerous wills were probated, letters of administration granted, and inventories filed.

Other inventories filed were as follows: Estate of John Grant, Trumbauersville, $750; estate of William G. Hess, Springfield township, $23,606.54.

Letters of administration were: Harry C. Richardson, Northampton township, $1,000, letters to Flora Richardson, and First National Bank and Trust Company, Newtown; estate of Morris Beyer, East Rockhill township, $1,000, letters to Elizabeth Albrecht.

Wills probated were: Estate of Sadie Carter, Doylestown, letters to Maud H. Layton, John Hoxworth, and Warren F. Hoxworth, $2,500; estate of Caroline Kroger, Newtown, letters to First National Bank and Trust Company, Newtown, Pa., $10,500; estate of Fred Kammer, Hilltown township, letters to Fred Kammer, Jr., $5,500.

Representatives of various Quaker-town organizations held a joint meeting in the Merchants' bank building, at which time Frank Hartman, in charge of the registry bureau of unemployment, under the auspices of the chamber of commerce, reported fifty-seven persons had made applications for jobs.

A united effort of different concerns and organizations will be made to procure work for these men, about all of whom reported that they are not in distress, but need work soon.

Quakertown merchants donated five percent of all proceeds from sales last Monday toward the unemployment fund, and Sunday afternoon, December 21, the Citizens Band will render a concert in the high school auditorium, when a collection will be taken to aid the fund. A football game is also planned.

Benjamin Horger, 56, of New Galena, was found dead hanging from a rope in his barn. The body was found by a son, Adam Horger.

According to an officer, who accompanied a Doylestown physician to the Horger home after the body had been cut down and carried into the house by the son, Horger had threatened. (Continued on Page 4)

PRODUCTIVE MONEY

That adage, "Shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves in three generations," doesn't apply to American-made fortunes.

Whatever the ability of Americans to make fortunes, there is one feature of their prosperity which is undeniable—their propensity for holding on to the mighty dollar once it is within their reach. Riches do not always beget carelessness among America's "best families."

All the outstanding fortunes amassed by Americans have been increased by their heirs with one exception, that of the Gould millions, and in this case it was the fact that the heirs were strongly bent on getting all that was coming to them that caused the fortune to diminish through legal fights.

Fortunes grow in the United States. Riches beget riches; money attracts money. "To him who hath shall be given."

It is a fine thing to find millionaires and their heirs provident and putting their millions to productive use. Wastrels keep money in circulation by taking it out of production and expansion.

But there has come a time when the rich must give and give lavishly. They must forget profit and loss for a moment and think of millions destitute through unemployment. Many of them are responding out of pure generosity and compassion, grateful that they can alleviate human misery. But there will be some who will place in jeopardy that prosperity which has been benevolent to them by hoarding their wealth when it should be working, making jobs and buying food. The latter are the sort who inspired that demand in the senate for a "tax on the rich."

MATERIALISTIC

Cynics will smile when they hear of a "tribute" that has stirred Olomouc to its very foundations. As few, if any, persons over here have heard of Olomouc, it should be explained that it is a little Moravian town in the republic of Czechoslovakia.

The Olomoucs recently discovered that a low fellow whom they clapped into the local gaol about 140 years ago, was none other than the great Marquis de Lafayette, hero of the American War of Independence. Forthwith they took up a collection and erected a memorial explaining what a fine fellow great-grandfather always said Lafayette was.

Of course the purpose of the Olomoucs was to honor a great liberator and humanitarian. It only happens that the memorial and the history it revives will attract some thousands of tourists to Olomouc each year to patronize its inns and shops and to buy postcards, souvenirs in leather, wood, brass and porcelain. But no thought of this can have crossed the simple, unsophisticated minds of the worthy burgesses.

American tourists trade, or, more specifically, the wealth it brings, is working great changes in Europe. It is both restoring it and making it over. The "materialistic" Americans value Old World history, scenery, traditions and customs more than do Europeans, but Europe is materialistic enough to give the customer what he wants. So the tourist finds America and Americans not without honor in the old countries.

AROUND THE WORLD TODAY

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The complete recovery of former President Raymond Poincare, ill since last Saturday, was predicted today by friends close to the household.

A close watch is being kept on him by Dr. Louis Boidin, the attending physician, but it was believed that the danger was past.

Prominent callers continued to arrive at the Poincare residence, but it was stated that no one would be allowed to see the statesman for the next several days.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 19.—Gilbert Beesmyer, church leader and asserted stock speculator, who is charged with losing between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 of building and loan money, will face his third court appearance today amid armed deputy sheriffs.

On his two previous appearances in court to beg for time in which to make up his mind about pleading guilty or not guilty, ominous mutterings and loud shouts greeted him.

Beesmyer is charged with ten counts of grand theft for asserted looting of the Guaranty Building and Loan Association of Hollywood.

When arrested he confessed, and told authorities he would plead guilty. His attorney, employed after Judge Walton J. Wood refused to hear a plea unless it was with legal advice, announced he would fight to the finish.

District Attorney Buron Fitts declared he will ask the Grand Jury for 50 more indictments against Beesmyer if Beesmyer fights the charges.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Fifteen persons have been killed and many are homeless following eruption of a volcano at Merapi, Central Java, reports to the evening papers today stated.

Natives fled from surrounding villages as lava rolled down the mountain side, burning everything in its path.

The eruption was accompanied by loud rumblings and continuous lightning. The volcano has been active for two weeks.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Dec. 19.—(INS)—Five young men, including W. Wheeler Watson, 22, son of Federal Judge Albert L. Watson, of Wilkes-Barre, were killed near here early today when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into an abutment of the Pennsylvania Railroad underpass, across the river from here.

The dead, in addition to Watson, are:

Robert Wilson, Wilbur Gair and Herman Gair, all of Watsonstown, and an unidentified man, said to be a salesman from North Kenton, Ohio.

A sixth member of the party, Paul August, of Watsonstown, was cut and bruised in the crash.

Coroner Joseph Fisher, summoned from Sunbury, began an inquiry into the accident immediately. It was believed the driver lost control of the car when he attempted to make a turn into the entrance to the Lewisburg bridge, across the Susquehanna River, and the car crashed into the abutment.

Judge Watson and his wife sailed for a trip abroad last night, it was reported here, and have not yet learned of the death of their son.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—Nine persons were missing today and it is feared they perished when the fishing launch in which they were riding was capsized by waves off Tomales Bay, on the Marin County shore.

First clues to the identity of the launch and victims came from a resident of Marshall, a little community on Point Reyes. There it was revealed that Jack Freas, owner of the launch, answering the description of the wrecked launch, and eight others failed to return to their homes last night.

X'MAS ENTERTAINMENT PLANNED AT EDDINGTON

EDDINGTON, Dec. 19.—Both rooms of the Eddington public school will combine for a Christmas entertainment, the program being arranged by Miss Laird, teacher of the lower room, and the principal.

The entertainment numbers include dialogues, plays, recitations and songs.

Those taking part in the plays are: Viola Ackerman, Anna Hunter, Anna Mace, Dorothy Abel, Frances Leonard, Marie Gorman, Lester Jones, Michael Sotung, Arthur Whalen, William Cio-ci and Leo Ellison.

The other pupils will give the song and recitation numbers.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Nancy Hollenbeck, young and beautiful, wants to keep her newest beau, Mat Tully, all to herself. Returning from a ride she leaves him at the door to avoid her mother's questionings and her sister's stares. Later Mrs. Hollenbeck warns Nancy against her own mistake of marrying a poor man.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

NANCY DECIDES TO BREAK WITH MAT CHAPTER III.

ALL that night, while a restless wind rattled the stiff leaves of the magnolia tree, and blew the heavy sweet scent of stock and jasmine and mama's wily Spanish roses through the wide open windows, Nancy tossed in bed.

If, like Romeo of old, Mat Tully had come softly back through the garden, and showed a dark head at her window, Nancy's story would have been different. She would have gone with him then, had he asked her, without a backward look for the disapproving family. But he didn't come, of course. He had said not a word to her of love. "Maybe he doesn't care as much as I do," she thought, "thrusting about hopelessly. "Maybe it's just as people say, and I'm just in love with love!"

She felt cheated then, and cried a little in the dark. The lumpy mattress sagged under her slight weight, the too-short sheet worked down, so that the rough blanket scratched her neck.

Oh for NICE things! A boudoir like May Belle Craig's, with exotic lacquered furniture, and a silken, downy quilt.

Just Forget

"Why shouldn't I have them as well as May Belle? Why do I have to be so poor? Why do I have to go and fall in love with somebody who's poor too?" And then, rebelliously, "Well—I won't. I'll get over it. I'll just put him out of my mind. I won't see him again. I'll just forget him."

She wept then. Broken heartedly. But the tears were for herself, not Mat Tully. After all, she had been spoiled. She was only nineteen. Love had touched her just lightly.

"Mat?" Nancy Hollenbeck's voice, lilting and lovely, came carelessly over the wire, and all the irritation he had felt at being disturbed at the busiest moment of a busy day disappeared. . . puff! as suddenly flimsy as a soap bubble.

"Yes, this is Mat!" His voice, clipped and disinterested a minute ago before he knew who it was, changed miraculously. He moved a little nearer to the phone. "Say, this is great! How do you know where to call me? This is a pretty big old university, full of laboratories."

"Oh, I told them I just had to have Matthew Tully, who was working on some dry old chemistry research."

"You didn't!"

"Yes, I did, and I said it was terribly important."

"Of course it's important. It's always important to hear from you. What time am I going to see you tonight?"

lips were red and promising, whose skin was soft and white. And her voice came, sweeter than ever, "Oh, that's why I phoned. Mat, I'm so sorry. But I can't go. . . No, really I can't. I can't possibly!"

Before he had exhausted half of his arguments she escaped, pleading that she just couldn't keep him from work another minute, and he was left with the ruined experiment—some three weeks of patient work gone up in smoke—and a sneaking suspicion that he had been made a fool of.

Disappointment

"If that's the way she feels about it, ALL RIGHT!" He went back to work with a vengeance. But nothing progressed as it should, so he stopped and lit his pipe and sat there in the small, cluttered lab, trying to concentrate on the rows of figures on the yellow checked paper that represented so many hours of patient labor.

It wasn't easy to put Nancy out of mind, once you had seen her. She was too vital, too disturbingly alive. Too softly, fragrantly lovely. He kept remembering the absurd way her eyelashes curled back, the way her hair twined itself around your fingers when you touched it—soft, babyish ringlets. The eager lighting she laughed.

"I wish I'd never set eyes on her!" he groaned, staring at the closely pencilled yellow sheets, and seeing Nancy instead.

"I never heard of anything so silly!" Louise Hollenbeck stormed, coming in just in time to see Nancy hang up the receiver, and burst into tears. "If you wanted to go, why didn't you? Making up a great big lie, and then crying about it!"

"Mama," Nancy wailed. "Mama spoiled everything. I never want to see him again. Never."

"How could mama spoil it when she hasn't seen him? What do you listen to her for?"

"I don't. But just the same, I don't want to go and . . . and . . . fall in love right now, when I'm just starting to have a little fun . . . if I were older, like you, Lou, I wouldn't mind . . . but when I'm just starting out, and everything ahead . . ."

Louise's hand clutched the chair. So tight that the veins stood out in dark, purplish knots. "How do you know there's anything ahead? Maybe when you're twenty-four . . . oh, for Pet's sake stop CRYING, will you? Such a fuss over a MAN!"

But Nancy wept on softly, and, grumbling, Louise went and got the witchhazel and cotton for her eyes. "Here, take this. Don't be an idiot. Besides, you haven't really given him up! He'll be at the Craig's house party Friday!"

Every year, ever since they could remember, the Hollenbeck girls had spent the Summer with the Craigs.

"Of course I want you, too, Kitty," Mrs. Craig, who had gone to Miss Small's Select Seminary for Young Ladies with Mrs. Hollenbeck, always said.

But that was just a polite gesture. Cora Craig and her little circle, who had known Kitty Hollenbeck when she was Kitty Peebles, knew perfectly well that she never went anywhere any more. How could she see on Peter Hollenbeck's miserable salary, and without even one servant in the house? It was the world's wonder that the girls managed to keep up appearances as well as they did.

For weeks they had been busy getting ready. At least Louise had, and mama ineffectually followed her about the house trailing bits of lace and chiffon, emerging triumphant, from dark clothes with ancient hats and scuffed satin slippers. "Look, Louise, if we have this blocked, and get some new ribbon, don't you think it would be sweet? These slippers are practically as good as new. With the heels straightened and half soles . . ." It drove Lou nearly mad, especially with Nancy fawning her last minute, mooning in corners and no help at all

Morning Star Chapter To Give X'mas Party

The attention of the members of Morning Star Chapter No. 395, Order of Eastern Star is called to the Children's Christmas Party to be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 in the chapter room.

Extensive preparations have been made for this party by the committee and the members of the committee are most anxious that the affair be a huge success.

Health to All

The 24th annual sale of Christmas Seals and Health Bonds begins Friday, November 29.

The Seals are one cent each and the bonds $5 to $1,000.

The purchase and use of these Seals on letters and packages will aid in saving lives throughout the year.

Health Bonds are for those persons or business concerns who want to help more generously and cannot use many Seals.

The Seals and Bonds provide funds for the work of the United local, state and national tuberculosis organizations in combating the White Plague and improving health conditions.

In Pennsylvania this work is carried on by the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society and its 100 affiliated organizations.

The 1930 Seal shows Santa Claus, with a tree on his shoulder, bringing "Health to All."

This is the only Christmas Seal whose proceeds are devoted to health work.

This Year's Gifts from Heart, Says Shoemaker

The Christmas Seal campaign should be strongly supported because ill health is prevalent even in times of depression, according to Colonel Henry W. Shoemaker, U. S. Minister to Bulgaria.

Col. Shoemaker, who is a well known resident of Pennsylvania and was Christmas Seal chairman for several years before entering the diplomatic service, writing from Sofia, says:

"While in previous years gifts to the Christmas Seal campaign came from bountiful stores of prosperity, this year's offerings will come from the heart."

"A contribution to this year's Seal campaign will mean more for two reasons, that many have not as much to give as formerly, and the need for it will be greater in a period of dull times, unemployment, and scarcity of funds. These circumstances are but a passing phase in a great and growing country like the United States, and in another year everything will be better, but while depression lasts, ill health goes on, with the means to fight it harder to obtain."

"Therefore, as a thank offering for the past, and a resolve to make present burdens lighter for the sick, a generous support of the 1930 Seal campaign will be memorable for the good it is going to do."

nue, here, who are the parents of Mrs. Haney.

Alice still bears the scars of slugs of lead fired by the father when he shot his wife to death. The girl was standing by her mother's side when Haney entered, pointed a shotgun, and then fired both barrels, police said.

A few moments later, after he had rushed from the Francis house, where the shooting occurred, Haney tried to commit suicide. The force of one shot blew part of his jaw away and he was found by neighbors on the front porch of the house.

He was hurried to Mercer Hospital, where it was first believed that the wounds were fatal, but later he rallied and has sufficiently recovered to face trial.

earlier in the day, "to put an end to all arguments and worry."

While two sons, Adam and Benjamin, Jr., were away from the house about 1:45 Sunday afternoon, Horger walked to the barn. When he did not return, suspicion was aroused and Adam was summoned home to investigate. Horger had taken a rope and thrown it over a rafter in the hay-mow to form the death noose.

Survivors include the widow, two daughters and two sons.

INJURES FINGER

Alfred Dixon, Radcliffe street, had the misfortune to have the end of one of the fingers on his right hand severed yesterday while at his employment. The member became caught between two boxes. Treatment was given at the Harriman Hospital.

fore crossing and did not see any cars approaching. She and her sister started across and then she (Dorothy) heard an awful thump. The witness told of Matilda Grafenstine picking Laura Mae up from the Highway on the opposite side of the Pike.

The witness told the jury that Mrs. Fitzgerald came to her and told her that it was her car which had struck them.

Walter Gallagher, who took the victim to the Harriman Hospital, said that he had witnessed the accident. He stated that the four girls had started across the Highway but that one apparently hesitated. Then he saw two girls struck by the machine and thrown. Mrs. Fitzgerald, he said, had turned her machine first to the left in an attempt to avoid striking those girls who were ahead and in so doing caught the other two with the fenders of her car. "Mrs. Fitzgerald had her car under control," stated Mr. Gallagher. He was of the opinion that the car ahead of him had blocked Mrs. Fitzgerald's view of the children. He said that the car stopped within truck moving slowly. Traffic coming about 15 feet after the accident.

Marie J. Conly, of Philadelphia, sat in a car near where the accident occurred. She saw the four girls leave the bus and she stated that after crossing the highway they appeared to start back again and the one struck, apparently stepped in front of the machine.

Testimony in the Parkhill accident was to the effect that Parkhill drove up a hill and over the knoll on the Lincoln Highway about a mile east of South Langhorne. He then drove past a car ahead of which was a small in the opposite direction forced Parkhill to turn to the side and endeavor to crowd in between the two machines. The car struck a pole and the right side was demolished. McGuire was cut by flying glass and died almost instantly.

Three half barrels of alleged high powered beer were found in the rear of the Parkhill car.

The witnesses were Parkhill, Gertrude Ferguson, Neshaminy; John Phillips, Trevoise and Sergeant Miner, Highway Patrol.

Sergeant Miner testified there was no evidence of intoxication.

New Year's Poem

What did you do to the poor old year
To make him so eager to go?
What did you tell him to start a tear
And fill him so full of woe?

What did you slovenly leave undone
Wrenching his soul with pain?
What did you do to the year, my son,
Breaking his heart in twain?

What did you do to the dying year,
Making him loth to stay?
Was there a cynical, bitter sneer
Marring your face one day?

Was there temptation you didn't resist
To injure your fellowman?
Was there a chance for a kindness missed,
Never to come again?

What was the thought or the word or deed,
Making him keen to leave?
What was the warning you failed to heed,

Causing his heart to grieve?
Think of it well ere the glad New Year
Come, so no more you'll stray
Into the error that cost you dear!
Make the youngster glad to stay.

Many a man has put his foot into it entirely because of inability to keep his nose out of it. . . . We've about decided to let the knee question alone for a while. We insist that they all have bumps on 'em, but what good results from our insisting when the only reply seems to be "Well, what of it?"

Napoleon said there was no such word as can't. Wonder if he ever tried to scratch a match on a cake of soap?

A Page Devoted To Things In Which Women Are Interested

The Little Girl Who Threw Herself Away

—Her Friends Whispered Sympathetically

But Read This Letter, Says Winifred Black, and Then Decide Whether Her Choice Between a Career and Life with a Poor Man Was a Happy One.

By WINIFRED BLACK

WHEN she was not quite 18—the Little Girl stepped out of the house with her Man. And when they found a sleepy little church in a sleepy little town they stepped out of the car and went into the sleepy little church and the clergyman made them man and wife.

The Little Girl left a very comfortable home and a lot of rather interesting friends. She was rather a bright little girl and people looked for a brilliant career for her.

The man the Little Girl married was poor. He was a quiet man and not brilliant at all, and all the Little Girl's friends and the friends of her mother were, oh, so sorry for her.

"She has thrown away her life," they said, "Poor little thing."

"There is only one good thing about it—it won't last long."

Yesterday I had a letter from the Little Girl—way out in California—Nothing special in the letter—no great and thrilling news but some how—

Her Chosen Life Appointment

Well, read it yourself and see how you feel about it, here it is—or part of it:

"The bulbs in my garden are coming along well, especially the Daffodils. I have found a place where Daffodils and Tulips are purchasable for two for five, or five cents apiece. Next time we go downtown I shall get a lot of them. There are two Baby Gladolus up. I await them with interest as I don't know them at all. I have a black Calla Lily that will grow sometime."

"In my new greenhouse, that Charlie built for me, I have a lot of things in boxes: Canterbury bells, Columbine, Pansies and Shasta Daisies, among others. They are all peeping up in great shape. It is quite an adventure to see them appear. It has been hot down here. Now—two or so, ice-cream hot. But the nights are cool and beautiful. Especially with the moon and the golden afterglow and the hoot of the owls in the glen and the call of the quail, with two cats dancing wildly through the orchard and skittering madly through flying leaves, only to roll in them and make a grand rush for a tree, to flaunt themselves at the Scotties. It is beautiful.

"I am glad you have a dog. I couldn't imagine life without one. They are queer the way they fasten onto their masters. Cappy is entirely mine, heart and soul and body. Boy thinks the world revolves around Charlie and Nan follows her own sweet will.

"Both Well and Smiling"

"In one corner of the window sill as I write, Colleen is curled up and in the other, Ann-Dolly. Both asleep, thank goodness."

"We read 'Wuthering Heights' last week and turned with huge sighs of relief to 'Green-Pea Pirates,' afterwards. The latter may not be considered highbrow, or anything like that, but at least it is funny. You can't say as much for the other."

"My turkeys are the cutest things. They are as tame as can be and eat bread out of my hand. One of them is white with red markings and she is especially gentle."

"Our neighbors have peacocks, four of them, two cocks and two hens. I ask you isn't that thrilling?"

"Outside of that there isn't much news, and the arrival of the postman is imminent, so I shall cut this short."

"We are both well and smiling. We work and eat and sleep and live—and that's about all, except that we enjoy the processes."

"Yours sunnily."

Doesn't and snapdragons, moon peaches—not a very exciting world perhaps."

But dear me, I could find it in my heart to envy her—even if she did marry a poor man and give up what her friends thought would be a "brilliant future."

"How would you feel about it if you knew the little girl?"

GIFTS in DEMAND this CHRISTMAS!

This year, more than any other, the electric and modern gas gift is prized... hoped for! Beautiful new designs, chromium plating on electric articles and the new automatic devices on both gas and electric appliances... have turned all eyes toward these smart home aids. Our various suburban stores are fairly teeming with suggestions for everybody on your list! Spacious shopping areas... experienced clerks... attractive prices and budget plan privileges... combine to make shopping easy and delightful!

Electric Waffle Irons Are Welcome Gifts!

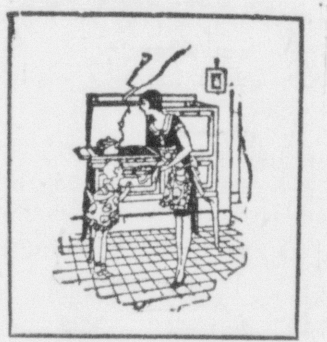

... and this year they're more desired than ever. Chromium plated, which means they'll never tarnish or stain! Automatic, which means a batter! Many beautiful patterns and styles to choose from. Prices begin at $9.95.

Wanted by Everyone... an Electric Clock!

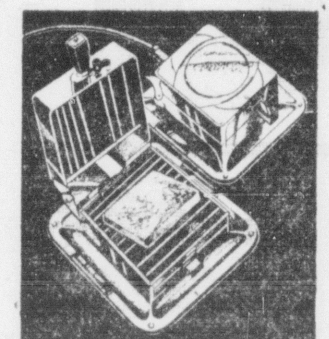

"What's the right time?" asks Father... Mother... Dad! The smart and modern electric clock answers unfailingly to the second. It need never be wound, set or oiled. U. S. Observatory time comes electrically from your socket. You will find a beautiful display of all types of electric clocks in our stores. Tudor model in walnut-colored bakelite shown. 6 1/2 inches high. Only $9.75.

"It's a... Bengal Range"

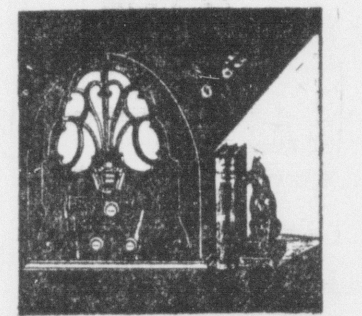

Fancy Mother's exclamation of joy when she crosses the kitchen threshold and sees this ivory and green... or pearl gray and white, gleaming porcelain enamel gas range! The famous Bengal... with Automatic Cook Heat Control to free you from the kitchen, new Hi-Low burners to save gas, and every fine modern range feature! With every Bengal Range a Seven Glowers Fireplace Heater with Burnt Brass Andirons, free. Small down payment. Next payment with January gas bill. Price, $113.50. Slightly more on deferred payments.

"Goodbye, Burnt Toast," says this Smart New Proctor

The 1931 toaster is new and different... and therefore in demand everywhere. The Proctor, which makes the most beautiful sort of a gift, is shown. In chromium plate, of smart new design... and automatic! It signals with a ruby light when the toast is done... and keeps the toast warm till needed. Toasts a slice or a whole delicious filled sandwich. $12.50. Other toasters at lower prices.

The Gift of Gifts... A Baby Grand Philco

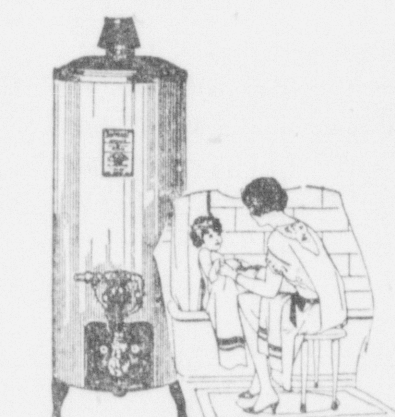

Perfect for a boy or girl away at school... for a second radio for the home to be used upstairs by Mother or Dad when young folks have captured the living room downstairs. The Baby Grand is a real big-performing 7-tube, all-electric Philco in a compact cabinet of interesting Gothic design. It offers the reception of a full-sized radio and yet sells for only $49.50. (Tubes extra.)

"Merry Christmas, Mother!"

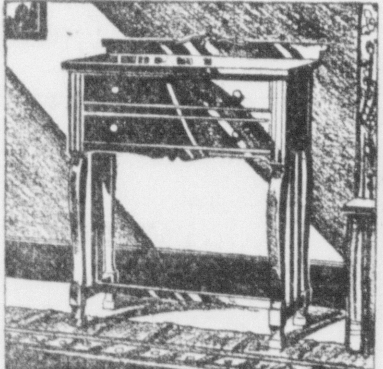

From a thoughtful son, perhaps, or from Dad... but whoever gives Mother her fine modern Eureka (electric cleaner) will be sure of an exclamation of real delight! De Luxe Eureka Standard Electric Cleaner (shown) with tremendous high-vacuum suction for thorough, easy cleaning. Popular because light to handle. $56.50. Easy terms. Eureka Special, a wonderful cleaner, too. $39.50. Easy terms. Free, with either model, a set of cleaning attachments.

Eureka Junior, a small, powerful hand cleaner. Cleans upholstery, pillows, draperies, mattresses and the inside of the car. Hair-drying attachment free. $16.50.

For the "Family" Gift... that Gas Water Heater!

There is a Santa Claus! For Christmas... you can install the Automatic Gas Heater the family has been wanting without paying anything at all! A thirty-day free trial... an allowance of $10 for your old heater... and no further payment until your January gas bill comes along! Then 2 years to pay! In place of the $10 allowance, you may take a beautiful Radiant Seven Glowers Fireplace Heater, with Burnt Brass Andirons, free! Choice of four famous Automatic Water Heaters. ## GOVERNMENTS' PRESTIGE IS LOWERED IN 1930

L. N. S. Director of Foreign Service
By H. C. Montee

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The year 1930, in addition to being remembered as the year of the great financial-economic depression, will stand out in history as the year of the great depression in the prestige of government all over the world.

More governments were turned out of power by force of arms, threat of force or coups d'etat during the twelve-month just past than during any similar period since the close of the World War. Government stocks appear to have slumped morally all over the world in almost an exact ratio to the monetary depression in economic and industrial stocks and the price of commodities.

No fewer than nine governments were overthrown by coups d'etat, force of arms or threat of force during the year; at least three governments were turned out of power by Parliamentary action, and attempts were made by force of arms to remove five other governments.

The majority of the governmental changes, even when accomplished by force of arms, fortunately was achieved with little or no bloodshed. Wholesale, spontaneous uprisings for the populace of a number of the countries so overwhelming as to leave the regime in power on choice but abdicate, or carefully planned coups d'etat so skillfully and swiftly executed as to catch the governing powers completely by surprise and unprepared to resist, obviated much possible fighting and bloodshed.

In a few cases the change in governments, or the attempts to change governments, were accompanied or preceded by sanguinary armed clashes or civil war in which many lives were lost.

The locale of the various subversive successes or attempts embraced Europe, Africa, Asia and South America. The only world continents not touched were North America and Australia.

Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Haiti, Peru and the Dominican Republic, in the Latin American geographical sphere, underwent changes in government, as a result of revolution, threat of revolution or coups d'etat. Abyssinia, on the African continent, Roumania and Spain, in Europe, did likewise. Chile, Cuba, Ecuador, Uruguay and China experienced attempts by force of arms to overthrow their respective governments.

Austria, Belgium, Egypt and France effected changes in government by parliamentary methods.

The unrest in India is not included in the above list because the agitation there, resulting in many sanguinary clashes and much bloodshed, did not have for its object the immediate overthrow of the government.

In most of the countries where governmental overthrows were experienced political unrest was aggravated by economic distress or discontent. This was particularly true throughout Latin America where the flame of revolution spread through the southern continent with the swiftness of an unchecked prairie fire. The exceptions were Abyssinia and Roumania.

In Abyssinia Ras Tafari, after inflicting a crushing defeat upon those opposed to his leadership, succeeded to the throne of which he had been regent, upon the death of the old Empress, Waizera Zauditu, which, by coincidence, occurred almost simultaneously with Ras Tafari's victory on the field of battle over the forces led by Zauditu's divorced husband.

In Roumania the change of government was brought about by a bold and perfectly executed coup d'etat by Prince Carol who broke his self-imposed exile to Paris to fly to Bucharest by airplane and seize the throne occupied by his nine-year-old son, King Michael.

Chronologically, Spain led the way among the more important countries which were to affect a change in their governing forces. Primo de Rivera, dictator of the country since 1923, resigned office voluntarily when it became evident that the leading officers of the Spanish Army no longer would support him in quelling disaffections against his regime. The finances of the country were in an unfavorable condition and discontent with the governing regime extended through all classes of civilian life and to the Army. Primo de Rivera fled to France soon after he was succeeded in power by General Damaso Berenguer, and died in Paris shortly after his arrival there.

Bolivia fired the first gun of revolution which was soon to spread throughout South America. There a section of the army mutinied against the rule of President Siles because of dissatisfaction over promotions. The revolutionists were supported by a large majority of the population and after some severe fighting, President Siles and members of his government were compelled to flee the country.

Peruvian politics erupted within a few weeks, with the outbreak of a revolution in the southern provinces, headed by Colonel Sanchez-Cerro, which rapidly gained headway against the government forces of President Augusto B. Leguia, Peru's "Iron Man." After two weeks of revolutionary successes in the south a group of leading military officers stationed in Lima suddenly revolted and forced the abdication of President Leguia and his cabinet. Colonel Sanchez-Cerro was elected president by the military junta.

Argentina followed closely on the heels of Peru in deposing the existing government. There, after two weeks of smoldering unrest against the regime of the aged President Hipolito Irigoyen, during which Buenos Aires was ruled virtually by martial law, the army suddenly mutinied on the morning of September 6. In the face of overwhelming opposition, Irigoyen and his cabinet resigned.

In Brazil revolutionary forces long had been reported ready to test strength with the government forces of President Washington Luis, but before this revolt actually got under way there were sporadic attempts in Uruguay, Chile and Ecuador to overthrow those governments. President General Ibanez in Chile ruthlessly stamped out the attempt there, and the government forces in Uruguay and Ecuador were able to effect a compromise with the dissenters.

The Brazilian revolt developed into a full-fledged civil war which continued for three weeks. Military successes were repeatedly claimed by both factions until, almost without warning, the Rio de Janeiro garrison joined forces with the revolutionaries. President Washington Luis declined to resign and was forcibly removed from office. After some dickering among the successful revolutionary generals, Dr. Julio Vargas, leader of the original revolt in the south of Brazil, was chosen President.

In West Indian waters the Haitians and Dominican Republicans, in the meantime, had forced out their respective presidents, almost without firing a shot, and Cuba was seething with unrest which for a time seemed to threaten the presidency of Gerardo Machado. The latter, however, was able to control the malcontents, except for sporadic rioting in Havana and one or two other cities in the country.

The civil war in China was more or less a continuation of the internecine strife which has been in progress almost without interruption for more than ten years. A powerful group of north China military leaders banded together for the express purpose of overthrowing the Nationalist government of President Chiang Kai-shek, at Nanking. Unlike the South American revolutionists, the Chinese generals set up their own government before they moved on Nanking. After several months of activity, and some fighting, the revolutionists were put to flight and the movement, for the time being at least, failed.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

by Nancy Lee

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am a young married girl of 19 years of age, and deeply in love with my husband, but here is the point. He is in a business that throws him a lot with other girls, and it hurts me terribly to see him laughing and having a big time with them.

And there is one certain girl that I know loves him, and although he says he doesn't care for her, I know from the way he acts he must think something of her. I don't love my husband or I would trust him because I love him more than anything in the world, that's why I never want him to care for any other girl.

B. E. In this day and age when men and women are thrown together in various branches of business and industry, a wife must be broadminded. And girls who have themselves worked in shops and offices know that there is generally little in the badinage and friendships among a business group. So brighten up, be your smartest and prettiest so that your husband will hurry home to the prettiest and sweetest girl he knows.

DEAR NANCY LEE: Bob and I have been going steady with each other for about six months. I love him, but he only likes me as a good pal. That was when we first met. About three weeks ago he told me that he loved me also and that he couldn't be without me.

Now this is why we want your advice. We both declared that we care for each other, but Bob doesn't believe me and I don't believe him. He doesn't go with any other girl and I don't go with any other boy. We always go together no matter where it is.

Can you help with our problem? BOB AND PEG.

BOB AND PEG: Unless both of you are prepared to believe in and profoundly trust one another, I can see little chance of happiness ahead for you. You seem to care for each other, why not take your mutual affection for granted and find your happiness in it. Put foolish ideas out of your head and get down to facts.

Knew When To Quit

By HARDIN BURNLEY

BOBBY JONES (Right) WHOSE RETIREMENT AT THE CREST OF HIS GOLF CAREER PARALLELS THE RETIREMENT OF GENE TUNNEY (Below), WHO QUIT THE RING WHILE STILL AT THE TOP OF HIS FORM!

TWO SPECTACULAR RETIREMENTS!

FOR all time, Mr. James Joseph Tunney and Mr. Robert Tyre Jones will afford classic examples of champions who knew when to retire and did so. True it is that Tunney and certainly Jones appeared to have many stellar years ahead of them when they abandoned competition right at the very acme of championship form. Gene, master boxer, had outpointed the mighty Jack Dempsey twice, had made "his million," and married an aristocratic beauty. Jones had achieved the unbelievable in golf, winning its four major championships in 1930, and nine others during his ten-year career. Bobby is only 28 and Gene was but slightly older when he said farewell to arms that push leather-encased knuckles.

Announcement of Jones' retirement was coupled with his statement that he had contracted with a movie concern to make golf lesson talkies for a sum generally estimated at $250,000. As an amateur golfer, Bobby had been making a modest income from his writings and also his law practice. The expense of competition was considerable and its nerve strain terrific. So right at the zenith of his fame and prowess, Jones decided to abdicate his superlative throne and reap the substantial reward that his marvelous skill and perfect sportsmanship so well merit.

Tunney—always less popular than he should, or might, have been with the rank and file of fight fans—liked boxing but not the hard-boiled, grifting, nauseating elements identified with the ring. Despite Shakespeare, Gene was a great boxer who was intelligent enough to finish at his pugilistic peak so he can enjoy fully his riches and romance. This most bookish of boxers was even more renowned for his timing than was Referee Barry (bad sez to that "long count!"), and he knew just when to quit before the tinsel had been knocked off his crown, or the collegiate contours of his countenance had been battered to unromantic forms.

Such common sense is seldom displayed by champions. However, after all, Jones and Tunney were no common champions.
